MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 15

A Personal God.

The Liberal Club of this city enjoyed last evening what might be called a religious and scientific free and easy. The Rev. C. P. Ma-Carthy, pastor of the American Free Church, opened the meeting by delivering a lecture on the belief in an infinite, intelligent and personal

God. It was appounced that at the close of the lecture a debate would be in order, and all who wished to dispute the lecturer's opinions were at liberty to do so. Mr. McCarthy was a bold man thus to beard the lion in his den, for Seience Hall, where the lecture took place, is the stronghold of free thought. All the free thinkers were out in force last night. They were unmistakable. Mr. McCarthy spoke at greater length than any of his opponents. His argument showed the strongest orthodoxy, and all the powers of his mind and tongue were brought out in support of the popular belief in a living God. It she chief point was, that intelligence could spring from nothing but intelligence-the infinite, intelligent God—and that God's intelligence could not be caused by anything but intelligence—that is, by Himself. Some held, he said, that science is opposed to religion, and plays into the hands of those who deny the existence of an absolute, intelligent being. But how can this he when all payme is but a proposition. can this be when all nature is but a revelation of a personal being and intelligence? The objects of science must have been embedied thought before they could have been comprehended by the thought of scientists. The scribblings of a child on a slate are incomprehensite. ble because they embody no thought; but the expression of thought in a book or in a picture is always intelligible to a thinking man. The same relation which the eye bears to the light and the lungs to the atmosphere is borne by the soul to God, to whom it turns as naturally as the heliotrope to the sun. It is reasonable to believe in a personal Infinite Being and irra-tional to doubt its existence. Let atheism prevail and civilization will cease to progress, art will lose its inspiration, science will have no end, religion no foundation, and the brotherhood of man no lasting bond. The times informs us that philosophy is but a long way of spelling fool, and with that I agree. I ask if this brief address can be overturned argumentatively, and if any one who wishes to oppose it will prove that he is not a dunce he will do it by treating the subject in a rational way.

The next speaker viewed the matter from a different standpoint, holding that "the belief LADIES', GENTS' AND CHILDREN'S different standpoint, holding that "the belief in an infinite, intelligent and personal God is unreasonable," and that there is "no more necesity for a God out of nature to produce what we see than there is of a fifth wheel to a coach." Such a God, he said, is irreconcilable with the facts of history and experience. If there be a God with the power and the will why has He not made this a world of plenty and the black spots which the history of the race display? No solution being offered to this conundrum, another man of free thought mounted the stand to state that "if God started this machine (the universe) perfectly, it don't want Him to run it, and if He didn't, He botched the work, and is no God." "If there were such a God in existence before the world," he added, "He must have lived without eating, for there was nothing to eat; without smelling, for there was in an infinite, intelligent and personal God is unstand to state that "if God started this machine (the universe) perfectly, it don't want Him to run it, and if He didn't, He botched the work, and is no God." "If there were such a God in existence before the world," he added, "He must have lived without eating, for there was nothing to eat; without smelling, for there was nothing to smell, and without thinking, for there was nothing to smell, and without thinking, for there was nothing to think about—till, by accident. He happened to think of making a world. The speaker then read a letter, accusing Mr. McCarthy of attempting to enforce his arguments McCarthy of attempting to enforce his arguments by personal ridicule and abuse of his opponents. A man in the audience repeatedly demanded who the letter was signed by, but was n'. last silenced by learning that it was anonymous.

The fourth speaker took the stand at this point. and declared that "for one man to affirm the existence of a personal God and another to dany it is dogmatism, pure and simply, for we absorbutely know nothing about it. But there is nothing in the universa which reveals a character such as the Jupiter of the Romans or the Jehovah of the Hebrews, nor is there anything in nature which reveals the character of their hell."—N. Y. Herald.

Remarkable Escape of Eminent Men. Some years ago a young man holding a subordinate position in the East India Company's service twice attempted to deprive himself of life by snapping a loaded pistol at his head. Each time the pistol missed fire. A friend en-
